

Is this you?

Another evangelism conference, really? Been there done that.

Wouldn't you rather have radical encounters with people?

Yes, but our church already has an evangelism program.

Ok, I hear you. Let me ask a question? How many non-Christians do you know personally?

Hmm, can't think of any

Let's explore the reasons for that disconnect and discover how to bridge this gap.

The Naked Truth about Evangelism.

Current evangelism methods are not working.
Christians have lost touch with those outside the church.
People are not coming back into our church buildings.
Our Christian "bubble" is so thick we can't break through.

Radical Encounters with People Outside the Church is Essential.

Why?

People process their lives, both joys and wounds, outloud.
Christians should dwell "in the midst" of non-Christian communities to really make an impact.
Christians need to hear the questions of the unchurched in order to understand how to minister.
Developing the skill of "Listening to Hear" rather than "Listening to Reply" is life-giving to relationships.
