

EXTRA GIVING OPPORTUNITY

“After three years of remarkable success in managing our six refugee schools, the number of enrolled students reached 750 children in total at the beginning of the current academic year. Now, however, we are in a position where we believe that self-sustaining that success is a task that is growing ever more difficult by the day. Help in saving some, if not all, of the schools is of prime importance. In spite of the financial woes that led us to end 2018 with a deficit of USD 127,144, we are still tirelessly trying to carry on, as keeping 750 students in the classroom remains one of our more unyielding goals.”

- Rev. Joseph Kassab, General Secretary (NESSL)

National Evangelical Synod of Syria and Lebanon

National Capital Presbytery's Iraq-Syrian area Network (part of the larger Global Mission Network) received a request for assistance from the PCUSA regional liaison to Iraq-Syria-Lebanon.

Six refugee schools have been established to education 750 refugee children. Their current funding deficit means an inability to pay teachers and other expense beginning in April of this year.

If you or your congregation would like more information on how to provide financial assistance, or are interested in becoming part of the Iraq-Syrian area Network, please contact Marilyn Seiber at mjs1wan2@gmail.com
