

There are three things I hope you get out of this retreat... (flyer with registration LINK included in this TM)

Relationships – It’s been a while since some of us have been in the same room together. There’s nothing you can do to replace what can organically happen when people are gathered around a firepit with good conversation as the only agenda. I hope this happens left and right at this retreat. We are intentionally building time in the schedule for this. For many of our leaders it has been easy to feel like they have been all alone this past year. We want to interrupt that. If you come, plan to walk away with a few new friends who will be added to your support network for the journey ahead.

Respite – A change in location can go a long way. You can easily sit at home or in your office and virtually attend the best digital conference that your con-ed budget can get you. We all know how that goes though. You find reasons to pick up the routine of being in a familiar place. It’s amazing what a short drive will do for your spirit. Let this be a break from the regular. There will be plenty of time to walk, pray, take a mid-day nap, sleep in and turn off your phone.

Reignition – The content for this retreat is going to be PRACTICAL. Each of you will walk away refreshed and filled with new ideas. Ideas that won’t just keep the plate spinning but will ignite a new passion for your calling. You may rediscover why you fell in love with ministry. You may discover a skill set in engaging new people in your community that you never knew you had.

My hope is that everything that happens between 4pm on that Monday and something around lunch on that Wednesday directly impacts the churches that each of you will drive back to. I hope that the folks in your pew see a new flame in your heart that burns brighter for the work of Christ in them and in you.

John
